

WHAT MATTERS?

Stories by Abbey Smith & Caroline Treadway

HOME VIDEOS PHOTOS BLOGS

WHAT MATTERS?: Stories by Abbey Smith and Caroline Treadway.

VETERANS EXPEDITIONS

Blog Listing

From: Caroline Treadway
February 07, 2011

PREV POST

NEXT POST

Photo: Michael Ramsey (video still)
Veterans head to the summit of Longs Peak, on Sept. 11, 2010.

In the wee hours of Sept. 11, 2010, a small team of combat veterans, ages 24-65, set out to climb Longs Peak, the highest mountain in Colorado's Front Range. Together they headed up the dark trail, headlamps bobbing through the frosted morning. When sunrise torched the tip of Longs, they were still hours from the 14,259 ft. summit. Exhausted, but fueled with a group determination honed by years at war - Vietnam, Iraq and everywhere in between - they marched to the summit, signed the registry and looked out on the country they'd fought to protect.

Photo: Michael Ramsey (video still)
Veterans sign in at the top of Longs Peak.

Stacy Bare and Nick Watson led the mission. The 32-year-old executive director of Veterans Expeditions, served in the army for seven years and hatched the idea for Veterans Expeditions in 2009. A year later, when Bare met Nick Watson and received a generous first time grant from Force Factor Nutrition, their vision to connect veterans through outdoor sports like hiking, rock climbing and biking, became a reality. Bare says activities like rock climbing recreate positive aspects of war that are often missing in civilian life - physical challenge, teamwork, trust, a sense of purpose and accomplishment.

Bare hopes Veterans Expeditions will improve life for veterans who might be struggling on a variety of levels. "We don't have a therapy agenda. We don't say, 'if you come on this trip you'll be better.'" said Bare. "But amazing things happen in the outdoors. Anyone who's been on top of a mountain knows that it changes you."

Photo: Michael Ramsey (video still)
Each of the veterans hiked up Longs Peak flying an American flag.

For a lot of veterans, it's not easy to come home. Many return to broken families and relationships, unemployment and depression. Isolated by their combat experiences, they turn to drugs, alcohol and suicide, with disturbing frequency. This past April, the Army Times released a statistic that 18 vets commit suicide each day, just one number that hints at the hidden costs of war, back home. Bare, who's worked through his own struggle to reintegrate, often found that nothing helped more than just getting outside and climbing.

"The veteran identity can be all-consuming. People ask really personal questions like, 'have you ever killed someone?' That's really isolating," Bare said. "But when

VIDEOS

Sort By:

Telluride Fights AIDS with Fas...
On the dawn of the fourth decade, the global AIDS epidemi...
by: What Matters?

you become a climber, you become more than a veteran. You become a vet plus something."

Photo: Caroline Treadway
Stacy Bare, president and co-founder of Veterans Expeditions, outside the Trident Cafe in Boulder, Colorado.

I met up with Bare at a cafe in Boulder, Colorado. Tall and gregarious, with a light beard and big blue eyes, Bare wore Carhardts and a t-shirt despite the winter chill. He was immediately easy to talk to, and I'd never pegged him as a veteran, at least until he pointed out the best surrounding buildings to shoot from.

A self-described "stereotypical, middle-class, white kid from South Dakota", Bare joined the army in his early twenties, following family tradition. His grandfather was a sailor in WW II and his great aunt, a family heroine, chose the Women's Army Corps. over Nebraska farm life.

Photo: Michael Ramsey (video still)
A Veterans Expeditions trip to the Mummy Range.

From 2000-2007, Bare served all over the world - Germany, Sarajevo, Angola and northwest Georgia, where he got a taste for rock climbing in the Caucasuses Mountains with a Chechnyan friend. "I started doing alpine stuff, stupid shit really, on rocks," Bare said. "We thought we were so bad ass one day, going up this icy slope. Then this old woman blows past us, she was like 85 years old, wearing rags on her feet, carrying cords of wood on her back, and I'm like standing there in my Goretex. That was pretty humbling."

Photo: Michael Ramsey (video still)
Veteran Demond Mullins enjoys a moment of quiet below Hallett's Peak, Colorado. Demond is working on a PhD in sociology at CUNY in New York. He's writing his dissertation about recruitment and the effects of combat on veterans.

Like many returning vets, Bare struggled with the blandness of civilian life compared to the adrenaline-fueled camaraderie he experienced in combat. Relationships were difficult, and drugs and alcohol only exacerbated the problem increasing his isolation. Desperate to engage himself in something that felt useful, Bare threw himself into graduate studies, a consuming distraction that required clear-headedness. "Grad school kept me going," Bare said. "It was an intense focus, I just kept moving."

When Bare graduated from UPenn with a master's in urban planning and design, he decided to give back to the veteran community, became the director of national programs and COO of Veterans Green Jobs, training close to 150 vets for employment in the green sector and convincing organizations like Wal-Mart to support the military, before starting Veterans Expeditions.

Photo: Michael Ramsey (video still)
Veterans Expeditions trip at the summit of Longs Peak.

"Stacy's a very smart guy, and he's very open about the fact that he's working through his own challenges and memories of what went on in the military," said Michael Ramsey, (www.spokenimage.tv) an award-winning filmmaker from Boulder, Colorado who's making a documentary about Veterans Expeditions.

Ramsey, a pacifist at heart, says that working with the veterans shattered many of his preconceptions about soldiers. "A lot of these guys miss it pretty deeply, the edge they found, the adrenaline, the meaningfulness of every day life they found in service. So when they come home they're just bored to tears," Ramsey said.

Eventually, Bare hopes Veterans Expeditions will bring together veterans from opposite sides of combat, through challenging, team-oriented outdoor activities.

Photo: Michael Ramsey (video still)
Veterans head up Longs Peak on Sept. 11, 2010.

Bare's currently working to drum up support for Veterans Expeditions, using a "shared basecamp" model by combining forces with already established outdoor organizations like the Women's Wilderness Institute and the Sierra Club. Multi-day trips cost between $800-$2000. per veteran depending on the trip. Veterans Expeditions is seeking fiscal and gear sponsorships to help offset trip costs. For more information please check out the web site at www.vetexpeditions.com.

Says Bare: "We're not trying to save the world, but we want veterans to take the next best step in their lives, expose them to the outdoors, create a new community, and replicate the positive experiences of combat. However we can do that, and anyone who wants to help us do that, we'll work with them."

Veterans Expeditions Teaser from Michael Ramsey on Vimeo.

Including news, features, photo galleries and videos, What Matters? is dedicated to covering adventure sports, active travel and the outdoor lifestyle on behalf of VentureThere.com--a member of the USA TODAY Travel Alliance.

COMMENTS

There are no comments. Be the first to comment about this blog.

RELATED BLOGS

Sort By: Most Recent All

[Road to the Nor'easter \[+VID\]](#)
Celebrate your passion for adventure, music and conservation...
by: What Matters?

The Zanskar Odyssey \(+Vid\)
This fall, Colorado climbers Pete Takeda, Abbey Smith, Jaso...
by: What Matters?

Tap into the Future: Red River...
These days my iPhone is my most valuable multipurpose tool ...

RECENT COMMENTS

By: handsome matt
On: Tea To Go!

By: matthew irving
On: Review: Mammut Denali Pant

By: kyote
On: 'Reach' Trailer

By: GK
On: BEST SNOW AND TRAIL FINDER IPHONE ...

By: Diana Schwartz
On: Rich Clarkson's Photography at the...

By: CO
On: Tap into the Future: Red River Gor...

by: What Matters?

GOLDEN ERA OF F1 RETURNS TO MO...

Every other May historic automobile racers, iconic cars, gl...
by: What Matters?

2010 EARTH TREKS ROC COMP

On April 25, 2010 the Unified Bouldering Championships Pro ...
by: What Matters?

I Dream of Hueco

Hueco Tanks is arguably one of the best bouldering areas in...
by: What Matters?

TAGS

aladdin bisphenol-a bpa-free c.p. cappuccino coffee
espresso flip france gear sencha tea tea infuser to go cups
travel mugs

BASE Soloing with Dean Potter

PowderJet: Homegrown Snowboard

Climbing and Deep-Water Soloing in Thailand

Spy Pics: 2013 Jeep Grand Cherokee

Watch Snowboarder Plunge Epic Alaskan Face

Check Out O'Neil's 2012 Girls Surfing Team

American Expedition Vehicles Brute Jeep

[Craig's: Burton Snowboards' Future Lab \[+Vid\]](#)

Freediving Dean's Blue Hole \(+Vid\)

SUP Surfing Sri Lanka

Chris Sharma in 'The Players'

Custom Vintage SUV

ICON 4x4 Introduces the CJ3B

The Insiders: Gym Climbing & Training

Week Trip: Whitewater Kayaking in Veracruz, Mexico

Spartan Race: Qualifying for the Death Race

2012 Volkswagen Golf R20

Burton's Gabi Viteri Slaughtering the Slopes

'Life Cycles' Trailer & DVD Update

Get a Behind the Scenes Look at Rockstar Energy Racing Models Photo Shoot

CONTENT

LEARN MORE

For Advertisers

For Publishers

Request a Media Kit

Lifestyle

Hypebeast.com

Flightclub.com

Booooooom.com

TheCoolist.com

Surf

Surfline.com

Surfersvillage.com

SwellInfo.com

SurfShot.com

Skate/Snow

ThrasherMag.com

SlapMagazine.com

TetonGravity.com

YoBeat.com

Moto/BMX

RacerXonline.com

RoadRacerX.com

TheComeUpBMX.net

DefGrip.net

Multisport

Backcountry.com

Freecaster.com

Malakye.com

BNQT.com

MMA

UFC.com

MMAconvert.com

MMAweekly.com

MiddleEasy.com

Adventure

VentureThere.com

Alpinist.com

TrailSpace.com

NSMB.com

© 2011 BNQT Media Group / USA Today Sports